VICTORY FOR
REPUBLICANSELECT ALL CANDIDATES IN TOWNSHIP EXCEPT CLERK.

Melvin A. Bates, for Supervisor,
Elected With 140 Plurality.

The republicans of Grayling township swept their entire list of candidates to victory in Monday's election with the exception of clerk. For the latter office Frank Kraus, running on the People's party, defeated Abe Joseph, republican, and Tony Nelson, democrat.

The election campaign was planned before the advent of the party caucuses and the People's party was organized principally for the purpose of defeating Melvin A. Bates for the office of supervisor. There seems to have been some dissatisfaction as to the valuation placed upon some of the property about town by Mr. Bates as supervisor, and rumors were rife of the many so called "discriminations."

Mr. Bates got busy and poured the light of publicity upon the statements used by his opponents, corroborating his report with official records on file at the Court house. These could not be disputed and before the election was over a lot of our people knew more about the responsibilities of a supervisor and about the true conditions in regard to assessed valuations, etc., than they ever did before. Notwithstanding the fact that the People's party, which was expressly organized to defeat him, had as good and fair minded a man at the head of their ticket as they could wish for, Mr. Bates had a majority over his nearest rival of 140 votes and 91 more votes than the other two candidates together.

The candidates for clerk were three of Grayling's clean and capable young men—Abe Joseph, republican; Frank Sales, People's party and Tony Nelson, democrat. Not one word can truthfully be said of any one of these that is defamatory of his character. Sales won because he hustled. Mr. Joseph had the advantage of the strongest party, however, he made no effort whatever to win. Mr. Nelson was apparently handicapped by the lack of party strength.

The only other contest was for justice. Fred Alexander entered the race in the election by running on slips, pulling 57 votes. George Mahon was elected by 46 votes over the nearest contender, Justice Wm. McCullough.

Leonard Isenhauer defeated Peter Jorgenson for highway commissioner by an even 100 majority. Wm. J. Miller led in the largest vote of any one candidate by receiving 243 votes. All the successful candidates were elected with majorities over the combined votes of their two opponents except clerk and justice.

The contests brot out the largest vote ever recorded in Grayling township—397. The day was bright and warm and was in itself an inducement for a person to get out of doors.

Only three voters took advantage of the absence voter's law—Harry Conline and Clyde Hum of the U. of M. and Will Lander of the M. A. C.

"Recreation."

In writing this paper on "recreation" I followed along the lines of the talk given by our Physical Instructor, Mr. Bungaard, at our last Mothers' meeting, on the play ground system. A fundamental feature of every normal, human life being its physical condition, intelligent provision of means to maintain and improve that condition, needs no apology.

We of today, must do something for the benefit of those who live here 50 or 60 years from now, as well, as for our own good. (We certainly must not forget the mother, past, present and to be.) Unless we look out for our own physical selves and especially insure that the children of today do so, our grand children and even great grand children are going to be physically weak. As play ground activities in their modern aspects are, rather new in America and not very old anywhere; it is only at the present time we are getting the necessary attention to this subject. Thanks to the persistent activities of the local and national societies and especially the "Play Ground Associations" of America. The attention of the authorities of cities and states of the nation is being guided by the fact that the 20th century conditions make not only desirable, but absolutely necessary some definite attention to the physical needs of the up growing generation of both sexes. The play ground movement is one of the most desirable ways thru which this demand can be met.

"Play grounds" meaning places for children to play, for older people to rest, directed or supervised play is necessary. This means somebody whose definite duty it is to direct and supervise the children in their play.

An illustration—New York City alone employs over 1,000 teachers in various forms of summer recreation center work. Laws authorizing play grounds and other means for physical training, have been passed by the legislature of New Jersey, Ohio, Massachusetts and other states. The Massachusetts bill would authorize each town or city of 10,000 population to maintain and carry on at least one public recreation center of suitable size and equipment, for the purpose of play, recreation and physical education. The funds to be raised by taxation, as for other public improvements. This same plan could be carried out in towns of much smaller size.

"DIVISIONS OF PUBLIC WELFARE EFFORTS."

There are a variety of departments for play and recreation that may be included properly under the head of "Play grounds" as we know them. These departments may be listed as follows:

- 1st—School yards, which very often over flow into the school buildings.
- 2nd—Out door play grounds, which may or may not be connected with a school or park, with plenty of space for games, trapezes, swings, sand gardens etc.
- 3rd—Roof gardens found in the larger cities.
- 4th—Evening recreation centers connected with our school buildings, such as our gymnasium connected with our school here, usually indoors and almost always partaking of a social service aspect.
- 5th—Recreation piers as in larger cities.
- 6th—Swimming baths, where there are water facilities, such as lakes or rivers, public baths may be maintained.

A play ground is the right of every individual. A man and a woman, a boy and a girl, all require physical activity as long as they live. There is just as much reason for a city not providing schools for its children, as for not providing means for physical training and recreation. Cities that do not or will not provide suitable citizens for their citizens and coming citizens to care for their physical selves, in my opinion and in the opinion of many other others, will be called upon sooner or later to provide additional police stations, jails and hospitals. The old time saying is "Prevention is very much cheaper than cure, for the patient and the doctor."

In closing, I will add, we teach general education in school houses and naturally the play ground is a place of recreation and the best place to teach play.

Mothers' Meeting.

The next regular meeting of the Mothers' club will be held at the school house Tuesday evening, April 11, at 7:00 o'clock.

A good program is prepared and it is hoped that every lady in Grayling will be present.

Among the numbers on the program will be remarks by Mrs. L. J. Kraus and also by Mrs. O. N. Michelson. There will be a paper on "The care of the baby" by Mrs. Andy Larson.

The meeting will be open for informal discussion, also there will be the usual "Question box."

BATTLE OF THE WETS AND DRIES

TWO WET COUNTIES CHANGE TO THE DRY SIDE, BUT LIBERALS HOLD TWO FIRMLY.

ROSCOMMON AND CLARE DRY

Twenty-Eight Saloons Put Out of Business—The Results Shown by Latest Reports.

With some of the heaviest voting on record in local option campaigns, the dries in Monday's election carried two wet counties, held their ground in the four dry counties in which the question was resubmitted, and apparently, in Ingham county, the storm center of the campaign, increased their lead somewhat over the vote of two years ago, when the county went dry by a majority of 1,108.

Baraga and Clare were the two counties in which the question was submitted, winning in Delta and Manistee, where the question had not been voted on, by majorities exceeding 1,000. Baraga, captured by the dries, was also virgin territory for the Michigan Anti-Saloon league.

Ingham county began rolling up dry majorities from the first precinct reported. The townships did as expected—went heavily dry and the city came through with some surprising results. The first ward, accounted the premier stronghold of the wets, went dry by 101 votes with all the county precincts and five of the 17 city precincts in the dries led by 1,637. This majority will be cut somewhat by the remaining city precincts, but the dries say the figure will not go below 1,200.

28 Saloons Go Out of Business. The voting in Lansing was unusually heavy and very slow because of the lack of voting space. Jackson county, second largest in which the question was submitted, remained wet by 577.

Baraga and Clare, the two dry trophies, gave majorities of 75 and 210 respectively.

Twenty-eight saloons will go out of business as a result of the election, 24 in Baraga and 4 in Clare.

The three other dry counties remained safely in their column. In Wexford the dry majority jumped from 20 in 1914 to nearly 600, 19 out of 20 precincts giving a majority of 564. Mecosta remained wet by 217, as against 392 in 1914. Roscommon's figures indicated an increased dry majority as seven out of nine precincts gave a dry balance of 118, as against a total dry majority in 1914 of 41. Clare, which went wet in 1913 by 153, gave a dry majority of 310, with only one precinct missing.

Schoolcraft Stays Wet.

The wet counties came through with big majorities—Delta defeating the dries by 1,058 and 20 out of 22 precincts in Manistee giving a wet majority of 1,400. Schoolcraft, in the upper peninsula, went wet by 55 on a light vote, scarcely two-thirds of the voting strength of the county turning out. Ogemaw remained wet by 112 majority, as against 70 in 1914.

Lake county remained wet by 86 majority, as against 71 in 1912. Nineteen out of 22 precincts in Isosco county gave a wet majority of 87. The two missing precincts will not alter the result, it is believed, although they may cut down the already narrow margin.

Heavy voting was reported from practically all counties. Ingham and Jackson leading. Isosco was an exception, the vote being reported very light. Mecosta county, Governor Peris's home, reported a full vote and from Cadillac, Wexford county, came word that 1,500 out of a possible 2,000 votes had been cast.

Roscommon—With four small precincts to hear from, Roscommon county goes dry by 113. These towns are expected to swell the dry majority. The proposition to bond the county for $75,000 for good roads carried by over 200 majority.

HENRY FORD LEADS WM. ALDEN SMITH

FOR THE POSITION OF MICHIGAN'S "FAVORITE SON" IN PRESIDENTIAL RACE.

WOOD DEFEATS COMSTOCK

Wood Led His Opponent Easily in the City, County and State.

With approximately one-sixth of the precincts of the state heard from at 1 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning, plus one-half the vote in Detroit, and approximately one-half of the Wayne county townships in, Henry Ford, Detroit multi-millionaire automobile manufacturer and peace propagandist, was leading United States Senator William Alden Smith for the position of Michigan's "favorite son" in the presidential race, by 869 votes, but was being rapidly overhauled.

The grand total of votes cast in the voting precincts already reported was less than 39,800. Detroit alone, at a normal election, casts approximately 80,000 votes. The 120 precincts reported in at 1 o'clock Tuesday morning had cast only 8,015 votes, of which 5,129 were Republican and 2,886 Democratic.

Contrary to expectations, the much-advertised fight between E. O. Wood, of Flint, and W. A. Comstock, of Alpena, for the Democratic vote, and the Republicans led easily in the number of ballots cast with the Smith-Ford affair as the only explainable cause.

W. G. Simpson, the third candidate on the Republican ticket, received a total of 1,685 votes in the state.

The Wood-Comstock battle, which was expected to bring out the Democratic vote, proved a decided disappointment, with less than 3,000 votes cast in the city in 120 precincts. Wood led his opponent easily in city, county and state. In the city he had nearly a three to one vote, 2,031 to 845. The state figures gave him in about one-sixth of the whole, 7,962 to 4,127, indicating an unexpected strength for Comstock throughout the state. In Wayne county, outside of Detroit, Comstock showed even stronger, 983 to 644.

Mrs. Elida Jane Winslow Lind, a daughter of Job Winslow, who served as a private in the colonial army during the siege of Boston, as corporal and sergeant in 1777, and as second lieutenant in 1781, died in Traverse City last week.

Lorene Walters, eight years old, lost her balance while playing on the St. Joseph river bridge and drowned. There is no railing on the bridge. It was several hours before the body was recovered, owing to the flood waters.

Lake ports are experiencing the greatest ship-building boom in years. Shipyards and drydocks are working day and night. Employees, mostly skilled, are scarce, and wages are 10 to 15 per cent higher than in past years.

A warning has been issued by the Lenawee county from Adrian locality. Seed oats tested at M. A. C. have shown low germination. The wet season of 1915 is given as the cause. The statement advises that extreme care should be taken to prevent poor results.

LETTER FROM STATE CAPITOL

THE REMOVAL OF A TELEPHONE MUST NOT BE MALICIOUS SO SUPREME COURT SAYS.

ACCIDENT BOARD DECISIONS

The Supreme Court Makes Some Important Rulings on Compensation for Injured Men and As to Telephone Service.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

Lansing—In a decision rendered the supreme court reversed the judgment of the Grand Rapids circuit bench in the case of Verde D. Harbaugh, doing business as the Electrical Service company vs. the Citizens Telephone company of Grand Rapids, and it is claimed the ruling of the supreme court will have an important bearing on similar controversies in the future. From the record it appears that Harbaugh's telephone was disconnected by the Citizens company February 5, 1915, it being alleged that he was in arrears. Harbaugh brought suit against the company for $5,000, asserting that his telephone was disconnected for a week and that his business suffered as a result. The circuit judge offered to direct a verdict of Harbaugh for the amount of the rental covering a period of seven days, but Harbaugh declined this offer and the court directed a verdict for the telephone company.

The case was appealed to the supreme court, where a new trial was ordered. "A review of all the cases upon the subject leads us to the conclusion that in the absence of evidence that the telephone company acted recklessly, or maliciously in interrupting service, Harbaugh cannot recover punitive damages," says Justice Brooks. "His actual damages may, however, include a just compensation for such annoyance and inconvenience as he may be able to show he suffered by reason of the telephone company's unlawful act."

"The contention of the Citizens Telephone company that Harbaugh was in arrears at the time the instrument was removed, is not tenable. The contract itself provides that by paying 75 cents additional, the subscriber may pay his quarterly rental not later than the 20th of the second month (February in this case). The removal occurred on the 5th of February, and was therefore unwarranted according to the terms of the contract."

Some Accident Decisions.

On the ground that his injury did not rise out of the regular course of his employment, the supreme court decided that John Kennelly has no right to demand compensation from the Sterns Salt & Lumber company, inasmuch as he was hurt while lighting a forest fire under the direction of the state forestry warden. Kennelly was employed with a railroad construction gang and was on the payroll of the Sterns Salt & Lumber company. While thus engaged a deputy fire warden requested him to fight a forest fire. While fighting fire Kennelly lost the sight in one eye and the industrial accident board decided that the Sterns company should pay him $5.02 per week for a period of 200 weeks.

The decision of the accident board in the case of James F. Robbins vs. Original Gas Engine company of Lansing was affirmed. Robbins sustained a sprain while lifting an engine a year ago and was awarded $167.08.

The supreme court also sustained a judgment of $1,000 given in favor of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Plantenga of Grand Rapids against the Grand Rapids Terminal railway and the Detroit Grand Haven & Milwaukee railroad. It was claimed the Plantenga property was damaged to that amount when the railroad company laced a side track on their land.

Stop, Look, Listen.

The supreme court of Michigan emphasized the stop, look and listen rule for automobilists in a decision rendered last week. John S. Sanford, a Battle Creek automobilist was hit by a train and sued the Grand Trunk in the circuit court where he received $650 damages. Sanford claimed he stopped his machine some distance from the tracks and the circuit judge refused to take the case from the jury on the ground that Sanford had exercised reasonable precaution. The supreme court quotes a federal court opinion to show that Sanford stopped where there was no danger and failed to exercise reasonable caution when he reached the track.

The case of Arthur C. Baxter against the city of Lansing was dismissed. Baxter was injured while working as a lineman for the municipal lighting plant several years ago and sued for damages. He lost in both courts.

Fund Is Growing.

Charles A. Durand, of Flint, has been appointed manager of the state accident fund by Insurance Commis-

Following the report that Flint has 186 cases of tuberculosis and that the total is being increased at the rate of 10 per month, the state board of health has ordered a survey of local conditions with respect to the disease. Three nurses employed by the state health board will make the survey. "The 186 cases reported in Flint may be more or less than in other Michigan cities, according to the population, but it is too many for any city to have," said Dr. Dekleine in announcing the survey.

SNAKEY VILLA SNEAKS AWAY

THE PEONS DID THE LYING AND VILLA THE RUNNING WHICH MADE PURSUIT FAIL.

VILLA KEEPS OUT OF FIGHTING

How United States Troops Are Work- ed By the Greasers to Help the Bandit Escape.

El Paso, Tex.—Francisco Villa, un- wounded and accompanied by only eight men, was at Statevo, 50 miles south of Chihuahua City, according to information received here from Mexi- can sources which have proved usual- ly reliable in the past.

The man who brought the story of Villa's arrival at Statevo here gave a circumstantial account of the bandit's maneuvers and plan of campaign. "Villa," he said, "has never taken part in any fighting with either American or Carranza troops. He left the main body of his troops in the Guerrero district with orders to oppose as far as they could the American advance. At the same time the peons were in- structed to give information freely to American officers, always provided that the information was false. The story of Villa being wounded was carefully concocted for the express purpose of misleading General Pershing and Colonel Dodd into the be- lief that the bandit was in hiding in the mountains and thereby inducing them to split their forces into small searching parties who would waste their time in the wild Sierras, while Villa was making his way south- ward."

Republican State Convention.

At a meeting of the republican state central committee held Tuesday after- noon, at which every member of the committee was present, either person- ally or by proxy, it was unanimously decided to hold the republican state convention in the new Prudden auditorium in Lansing, Wednesday, May 3. The county convention where delegates to the state and district con- ventions will be elected, will be held April 18. Arthur Vandenberg, of Grand Rapids, will deliver the key- note speech and will preside as tem- porary chairman at the state conven- tion. The principal business of the spring convention will be the election of four delegates-at-large to the re- publican national convention. Michi- gan is entitled to thirty votes in the national convention. Two delegates will be elected from each of the four- teen congressional districts and three- teen will be elected in convention. The state convention will also elect a chairman of the republican state cen- tral committee, nominate fifteen pre- sidential electors and ratify the nom- ination of national committee men, there appears to be little concern as to which candidate receives the en- dorsement of the Michigan delega- tion. Unless Justice Hughes refuses to accept the nomination, many mem- bers of the committee privately ex- pressed the opinion that Michigan's thirty votes would be thrown to Hughes on the second ballot at the national convention.

THE VERDUN SLAUGHTER

Gains and Losses in the Struggle to Hold Positions.

London—The Germans have made additional important gains northwest of Verdun, having taken "all the French positions north of Forges brook between Hancourt and Bethin- court," according to official statement from Berlin.

Just how many positions were taken and when they were taken is not made clear in the Berlin report.

The Paris official statement admits the loss of the positions north of Forges brook, but says they had been evacuated long before the Germans occupied them.

According to Paris the Germans knew nothing of the evacuation and when they rushed upon the positions the French, from a point where they were hidden, made a flank attack in which the Germans suffered heavy losses. Still, the Germans retained the positions.

In the fighting around Vaux, immediately north of Verdun, the French, in a vigorous counter-attack regained the west part of the village.

All the reports indicate that the Germans are hurling great masses of troops against the defenses of Verdun, but Paris says the French are holding the enemy in check at all points and have gained some ground in the Dou- aumont-Vaux region.

With reference to the statement as to expenditures of state departments, tending to show the per cent of in- crease in expenses during the past de- cade, the state banking department has issued the following statement:

"In 1905 there were in Michigan 282 state banks and trust companies with aggregate footings of $209,535,891.64. The law at that time required but one examination a year, or 282 examinations, each examination cost- ing $87.12.

According to the last report of the state banking department, there were 478 banks and trust companies in Michigan, with aggregate footings of $485,740,242.64. The law now requires two annual examinations of each state bank.

During 1915 the department made 978 examinations at a cost of $80.35 per examination. In 1905 the average bank footed about $743,000, while in 1915 the average bank footed $933,000.

The above shows that the increase in number of examinations equals 246 per cent, with an increase in assets to be examined of 132 per cent, and with a decrease of 7.7 per cent in the cost of examining each bank, notwith- standing the average size of each bank has increased during the period 33.5 per cent.

VILLA KEEPS OUT OF FIGHTING

How United States Troops Are Work- ed By the Greasers to Help the Bandit Escape.

El Paso, Tex.—Francisco Villa, un- wounded and accompanied by only eight men, was at Statevo, 50 miles south of Chihuahua City, according to information received here from Mexi- can sources which have proved usual- ly reliable in the past.

The man who brought the story of Villa's arrival at Statevo here gave a circumstantial account of the bandit's maneuvers and plan of campaign. "Villa," he said, "has never taken part in any fighting with either American or Carranza troops. He left the main body of his troops in the Guerrero district with orders to oppose as far as they could the American advance. At the same time the peons were in- structed to give information freely to American officers, always provided that the information was false. The story of Villa being wounded was carefully concocted for the express purpose of misleading General Pershing and Colonel Dodd into the be- lief that the bandit was in hiding in the mountains and thereby inducing them to split their forces into small searching parties who would waste their time in the wild Sierras, while Villa was making his way south- ward."

Republican State Convention.

At a meeting of the republican state central committee held Tuesday after- noon, at which every member of the committee was present, either person- ally or by proxy, it was unanimously decided to hold the republican state convention in the new Prudden auditorium in Lansing, Wednesday, May 3. The county convention where delegates to the state and district con- ventions will be elected, will be held April 18. Arthur Vandenberg, of Grand Rapids, will deliver the key- note speech and will preside as tem- porary chairman at the state conven- tion. The principal business of the spring convention will be the election of four delegates-at-large to the re- publican national convention. Michi- gan is entitled to thirty votes in the national convention. Two delegates will be elected from each of the four- teen congressional districts and three- teen will be elected in convention. The state convention will also elect a chairman of the republican state cen- tral committee, nominate fifteen pre- sidential electors and ratify the nom- ination of national committee men, there appears to be little concern as to which candidate receives the en- dorsement of the Michigan delega- tion. Unless Justice Hughes refuses to accept the nomination, many mem- bers of the committee privately ex- pressed the opinion that Michigan's thirty votes would be thrown to Hughes on the second ballot at the national convention.

THE VERDUN SLAUGHTER

Gains and Losses in the Struggle to Hold Positions.

London—The Germans have made additional important gains northwest of Verdun, having taken "all the French positions north of Forges brook between Hancourt and Bethin- court," according to official statement from Berlin.

Just how many positions were taken and when they were taken is not made clear in the Berlin report.

The Paris official statement admits the loss of the positions north of Forges brook, but says they had been evacuated long before the Germans occupied them.

According to Paris the Germans knew nothing of the evacuation and when they rushed upon the positions the French, from a point where they were hidden, made a flank attack in which the Germans suffered heavy losses. Still, the Germans retained the positions.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes any- one look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb im- purities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should seek only nourishment to sus- tain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a tea- spoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phos- phate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pro- nounced improvement in bot' health and appearance shortly.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OF A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hacking, snif- fling, blowing, headache, dizziness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It pen- etrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes in- stantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

Tailored Costumes Continue to Be Conservatively Cut and in the Simplest Styles—One of the Best of the Prevailing Models Pictures—Alluring Handkerchief Novelties Offered for the Approval of Femininity.

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

While in other departments of dress extremes of style and more or less eccentric fashions present themselves, the tailored costume is conservative. The tailor in his work seems to cling to a happy medium, a middle-of-the-road course. He takes cognizance of the latest ideas as to form and outline, but refuses to be beguiled by the extravagance of crinoline effects and a tendency to over-trimming.

The cleverest tailors are showing th two and three-piece suits that are pretty novelties in handkerchiefs to be worn in the pocket of the tailored coat. After glimpsing them in the quickly passing throngs on the streets one is apt to run them down for a better view. In the shops their beauty is flaunted in the eyes of appreciative woman-kind.

There are small handkerchiefs of colored linen lawn, with narrow hems in contrasting color, to be worn with the new colored checks. They are plain and chic. Next in the favor of admirers are white handkerchiefs with colored embroidery, in a design that suggests very conservative. The models sent over by French tailors depend upon cleverness of cut, correctness of lines, and perfection of workmanship for distinction. Perfect fit and finish contribute to their fine effect. They ignore fussiness.

American women are very partial to navy blue—"the gentlewoman's color," as the French term it. There is a large proportion of model gowns are made up in this becoming and serviceable shade. The majority are dark in color, but many of them are brightened by vests of brocade or plaid silks.

A model that is interesting from several standpoints is shown in the picture. The fullness of the skirt, a concession of the season's mode, is appropriately disposed in plaits. The coat is cleverly cut and easy fitting, with peplum pointed at the sides and back, and laid in plaits to give it fullness.

The sleeves are plain, with deep, slightly flaring cuffs. A girdle extends the springtime in one corner of each handkerchief. Butterflies and bees and blossoms are reproduced in unusual colorings and with beautiful workmanship. Similar designs show conventional flowers in one or two colors with white.

Four of these new ideas are shown here.

A springtime fancy appears in the clover blossom in pink with stem and leaf in greenish blue outlined with black. The bee has a black body with orange stripes and his gauze wings are merely outlined with the finest of stitches.

A butterfly with outspread wings is a marvel for its faithfulness to nature. It is in tan, black, white, and orange, and everyone has seen the same beautiful insect flying about. Another butterfly pattern shows gold wings spotted with blue and white. The body is white and it and the wings are outlined with black.

A conventional rose is shown in native blue, tan, and white, outlined in across the front and back, but is lacking at the sides. It is finished with a bit of embroidery, which is repeated on the standing collar.

A vestee and high turnover collar of satin, with cuffs to match, may be made in plaid silk if more color is preferred. Or they might be of pique or organdy, since they are separate pieces.

"The world is filled with a number of things," as is usual with the return of spring, designed to captivate the fancy and the favor of the beauty-loving summer girl. Among them are

Bows and Bands of Straw. Colored as well as black straw is used for bows and bands instead of ribbon. In fact, this idea is already so overworked that it is probable that we shall be tired of it before spring comes. All these novelties are quickly run to ground, especially when they start so early in the season.

Collar Sets of Leather. With the new vogue for leather trimmings and accessories of all kinds there is now being offered sets of black. The work on all these is exquisitely fine.

Portieres From Leather Scraps. Very pretty portieres can be made from leather scraps, known as "binders' scraps." The scraps of leather are cut in strips one-half inch wide and tied in knots, as carpet rugs are tied. The more knots the more effective the portieres. A beautiful shade of green leather can be purchased at a bookbinder's for ten cents or so per pound. Six pounds will be sufficient to make a good-sized portiere.

Painted Designs. Little soft felt hats for children, in white and pastel shades, have, by way of trimming, birds painted around the crown. On the white hats bluebirds fly; on the tan hats robin redbreasts are painted; other hats have carrier pigeons, orioles and a number of other brilliantly colored birds. There are sugarloaf crowns and rolling brims.

The KITCHEN CABINET

The world is a looking-glass and gives back to every man the reflection of his own face. Frown at it and it frowns at you; smile at it and it smiles at you; laugh at it and it laughs at you; cry at it and it cries at you; and it is a jolly, kind companion.

A FEW DELICIOUS SALADS.

A slice of fresh tomato on a crisp white lettuce leaf with a spoonful of mayonnaise sprinkled with chopped chives will make a most dainty and tasty salad.

Diced pineapple mixed with the quantity of pecan meats and dressed with mayonnaise, served on head lettuce, is another delicious salad.

Cabbage Salad.—Chop enough cabbage to make two cupsful, add chopped peanuts enough to flavor it well, two tablespoonsful of scraped onion and French dressing highly seasoned with salt and red pepper. A little red pepper cut in fine strips may be used as a garnish to this nice salad.

Potato Salad.—Mix cold boiled potatoes, cut in cubes with crisp cucumber, also cut in cubes, sprinkled with chopped onion, pour over mayonnaise and garnish with minced parsley.

Apple-Cheese Salad.—Pare apples and cut in small balls with a French vegetable cutter, marinate in French dressing and chill. Mash a cream cheese, season with a teaspoonful each of Worcestershire sauce and chopped red pepper. Shape into balls the same size the apple and heap a few of each on crisp lettuce. Serve with French dressing.

Meat Salad.—Cut chicken, beef or veal into fine pieces, removing all fat and gristle. To each two cupsful of meat add a cupful of chopped celery and one small onion, finely minced. Just before serving add enough boiled dressing, highly seasoned, to make it hold together.

Cabbage Salad.—Chop a small cabbage head very fine, with an onion, fry until brown a slice of salt pork cut in fine cubes, pour over the cabbage the hot fat and browned cubes, stir and season well with salt and red pepper, then add enough boiling-hot vinegar to season well and serve hot. This is a salad which may take the place of a vegetable at dinner.

Chicken Custard.—Take a cupful and a half of crumbs from the center of a loaf, add to them two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped chicken breast. Beat the yolks of two eggs until well mixed; add to them a dash of celery salt, a pinch of salt and a cupful of milk. Mix all well and pour into a custard cup set in hot water and bake until the custard is set. Serve hot.

Simple custards are both wholesome and dainty to serve to an invalid. Float-island, with small cubes of jelly on the egg white, makes a most attractive dish which will be especially pleasing to children. The sight must be appealed to in the sick, so a study of pretty combinations pleasing to the eye is worth while.

More Good Things. Cornmeal is a valuable food, being rich in fats and minerals.

Spider Corn Bread.—Mix together a cupful and an eighth of cornmeal and a half cupful of bread flour, a tablespoonful of sugar, three tea-spoonfuls of baking powder, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt; mix well, then add a cupful and a half each of sweet milk and a beaten egg. Add two tablespoonfuls of drippings into a hot frying pan and pour in the mixture. Bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes. Serve with jelly.

Cornmeal Crisps.—Mix together two cupfuls of cornmeal, two teaspoonfuls of salt, beat in gradually two cupfuls of boiling water, add two tablespoonfuls of butter and spread an inch thick in a large dripping pan. Bake until crisp, about fifteen minutes. Cut in squares and serve as crackers.

Savory Mush.—Stir into a quart of mush a teaspoonful of sage or of poultry dressing. When ready to fry cut in slices and dip in flour, fry in a little hot bacon fat and serve with fried bacon at breakfast.

Popcorn Balls.—Boil a cupful of corn sirup with a tablespoonful of vinegar until it hardens in water. Pour over the corn while hot and butter the hands well before forming the balls.

DISHES FOR THE INVALIDS.

The necessary requisites for an in- valid's service are wholesomeness of food, appropriate kinds for the person served and prompt and dainty service. Do not confer with the invalid as to what he would like to eat, for the various sur- prises will help to tickle his appetite.

The tray on which the food is served should be covered with a spotless napkin, folded to cover a good-sized tray. The small- est, prettiest dishes should be placed on it and everything in an orderly manner. All hot foods should be served hot and cold foods cold on well-chilled dishes.

For a fever patient, fruit juice in cold water makes most refreshing drinks. Serve in small glasses rather than in too large quantities. This is a rule which should be observed in all serving to sick people.

Oatmeal Gruel.—Take two-thirds of a cupful of oatmeal, add three pints of boiling water and a teaspoonful of salt; cook for two and a half hours in a double boiler. Remove from the fire and strain. When using for a patient, use half a cupful of the gruel with a half cupful of thin cream, two tablespoonfuls of boiling water and sugar to taste. A grating of nutmeg or cinnamon may be added in some cases. Other gruels may be prepared in the same manner, using barley, cornmeal, rice or faro.

Chicken Custard.—Take a cupful and a half of crumbs from the center of a loaf, add to them two table- spoonfuls of finely chopped chicken breast. Beat the yolks of two eggs until well mixed; add to them a dash of celery salt, a pinch of salt and a cupful of milk. ## STUDY EFFECT OF FIRE ON CAR

More than 200 pounds of oil-soaked rags, wood, and shavings were recently ignited in a steel passenger car by the testing department of one of the eastern railroads in order to determine what effect flames would have upon the metal framework. The material burned with great heat, but without causing distortion or serious injury to the car proper. Some of the upholstery, paint, and window panes were damaged, of course, but this was expected, naturally. The result of the experiment showed that the car was capable of withstanding fire and therefore up to the standard demanded by the company in that particular. The incident furnishes an interesting example of the thorough manner in which some railway companies test equipment and supplies before accepting them. —Popular Mechanics Magazine.

WON OVER OBSTACLES

GREAT FEAT OF ENGINEERING ON ALASKAN RAILROAD.

Difficulties That at First Sight Seemed Insurmountable Overcome by the Courage and Skill With Which They Were Met.

The building of the Miles Glacier bridge, on the route of the Copper River railway, may be taken as a typical example of the many and fearful obstacles that confront the railway builder in arctic Alaska, and is only one of many similar feats that could be cited. This 1,500-foot structure of steel, consisting of four spans carried on massive concrete piers, had to be erected across the river where it makes a double turn between the great living glaciers Miles and Childs. Both present 300-foot cliffs like faces to the water for three miles and every spring precipitate into the swift current an endless flotilla of icebergs, many of them as big as a mansion. Here, indeed, was a problem—the building of bridge piers strong enough to withstand these masses of ice being hurled against them by a twelve-mile current.

Everybody declared the feat impossible, but it was carried through after two years' strenuous fighting against fearful odds. Great concrete piers, begun through the winter's ice, were driven 40 to 50 feet through the river bottom to bedrock, and there anchored. They were built of solid concrete, heavily reinforced with steel. A row of eighty-pound rails were set a foot apart all around and the whole structure bound together within the concrete in an amazingly massive manner. Then above the piers ice-breakers of the same construction were raised.

The piers being finished, it was now necessary to connect them with a roadway of steel, and this had to be done in the winter, since no falsework would stand against the moving ice. It was a fearful and trying task.

Work was hurried forward and the last span was almost in place when it was seen that the falsework that carried it had moved a distance of eight inches. The falsework, that carried this span consisted of a thousand or two of piles driven deep into the bottom of the river 40 feet below the surface. The ice was a solid sheet seven feet thick, and it was borne on a twelve-knot current. Into it the forest of piles was solidly frozen. But the spring break-up had begun on the river, and the icecap, lifted 20 feet above its winter bed by the flood, was moving. The falsework, carrying a mass of unfinished steel, was 15 inches out of line and had to be put back if communication was to be established with the other side that winter.

Any moment, for all the engineers knew, the falsework and span would be carried away. They knew it would be a terrible tussle against seemingly overwhelming odds, but they determined to see it through. Steam from every available engine was driven into small feed pipes and every man in camp was put to work to steam melt or chop the seven feet of ice clear of the piles. And it was done. The holes were kept open throughout the day and night and in the bitter arctic cold hundreds of cross-pieces were unbolted and shifted while the river rose 21 feet.

Then began the movement up stream. At first it was but an inch a day; then three or four inches. The melting and chopping went on almost unceasingly. Anchorages were hastily built into the ice above the bridge, and while a gang thawed and chopped at the ice around the piles the whole 450 feet of towering bridgework was pulled, dragged and coaxed inch by inch back into its place. The engineers worked with feverish activity. It was midnight, after an eighteen-hour day of one shift, that the last bolt was driven home and the span settled down on its concrete bed. At one o'clock the whole 450 feet of falsework was a chaotic wreck. The river had lost its fight by less than a single hour.

ELDERLY WOMEN SAFEGUARDED

Tell Others How They Were Carried Safely Through Change of Life.

Durand, Wis.—"I am the mother of fourteen children and I owe my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I was 45 and had the Change of Life, a friend recommended it and it gave me such relief from my bad feelings that I took several bottles. I am now well and healthy and recommend your Compound to other ladies."

—Mrs. MARY RIDGWAY, Durand, Wis. A Massachusetts Woman Writes: Blackstone, Mass.—"My troubles were from my age, and I felt awfully sick for three years. I had hot flashes often and frequently suffered from pains. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now am well."

—Mrs. PIERRE COURNOYER, Box 289, Blackstone, Mass.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, back-aches, dizziness, drowsiness, fainting, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and dizziness, should be heeded by middle-aged women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has carried many women safely through this crisis.

JOHN J. NIEDERME, Secretary.

Circuit Court Next Week.

The April term of Circuit court will convene next Monday, April 10th, at which time it will be confronted with the largest panel, ever in the history of the county. Along with the regular cases for the term, the calendar contains all the cases that have come up in the circuit court in which no progress has been for more than one year. Of the latter there are 62 criminal cases, 113 civil cases and 62 chancery cases.

CRIMINAL CASES.

The regular criminal cases noted are the People of the State of Michigan vs. the following:

Jerry Thomas, carrying concealed weapons.

Kemp Collard, gross indecency, (two cases.)

William Irish, incest.

CIVIL CASES.

D. & C. R. R. Co. vs. Charles Blanchard, assumption.

Fred Waterman vs. Harry Hunter, replevin.

The Farmers' and Merchants' Nat. Bank vs. John W. Burke, in assumption.

CHANCERY CASES.

State tax sales.

Lewis G. Cook vs. Luella Cook, divorce.

Appreciation.

Editor of Avalanche:—

Kindly permit me to express to the voters of this township thru the columns of your paper, my appreciation of the endorsement given me at the polls last Monday. It not only is gratifying, but also inspiring to one when he feels that the work he has accomplished should meet the approval of his fellow townsmen. I have never claimed nor do I now claim that my judgment is infallible. Errors have been made in the past and undoubtedly will in all probability be made in the future, but it will be my aim to correct what has been made and avoid if possible any known mistakes.

I wish also to take the opportunity to require and urge upon all property owners to appear at the meeting of the Board Review, where full consideration of any claim may be given and a satisfactory adjustment made. The upbuilding and advancement of Grayling should be the watch word of all and to this I pledge my best efforts.

At the Town meeting Monday it was voted to raise one-half the amount of money for township and other purposes as was raised last year. This will cut down the funds to about one-half and naturally there can be only about one-half as much money spent for improvements. Quite a lot of kicking has been done because of high taxes during the past six months and now we wonder if the officers will be called a lot of tight wads because they cannot spend money to keep up the streets and other township responsibilities. They may even kick because the township hasn't enough money to paint the town hall, and do other things that are important. As the cry has been for lower taxes, the sentiments of the tax payers had to be considered.

WILL CELEBRATE OPENING OF NEW HOTEL.

Grayling and Bay City Industrial Boards to be Guests April 27 and Local Citizens April 29.

The Grayling Hotel company have arranged for the opening of our new hotel, "Shoppington's Inn" to be held Thursday, April 27th, when the members of the Bay City Board of Commerce and the members of the Grayling Board of Trade will be invited guests. The Bay City crowd will arrive on a special train at about 1:00 o'clock that day and as guests of the local Board of Trade will be shown the industrial part of the city, the Military reservation, new school building, fish hatchery and many other places of attraction. At about six o'clock there will be a banquet at the Inn, complimentary of the hotel company. There will be toasts and speech-making, music and other entertainment. The outside guests will return sometime during the evening.

On account of the lack of accommodations to entertain more than the Bay City guests and local Board of Trade members at the same time, arrangements have been made to entertain the general public of Grayling on the afternoon of Saturday, April 29th, between the hours of two and five o'clock. A buffet luncheon will be served the guests at this time.

Safe Medicine for Children.

"Is it safe?" is the first question to be considered when buying cough medicine for children. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has long been a favorite with mothers of young children as it contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. It is pleasant to take, too, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. This remedy is most effective in relieving coughs, colds and croup. Obtainable everywhere.

FAMOUS INN PASSES

Old Three Pigeons, Dear to Shakespeare, Is Closed.

House Was Popular Resort for Poets and Dramatists of Elizabethan Era—Familiar to Readers of Dickens.

London.—One of the last, if not actually the last, of the old Elizabethan inns associated with the name of Shakespeare and his literary contemporaries, passes away with the closing of the famous Three Pigeons at Brentford.

Much of the old-timbered building, including its low-carved and paneled chambers, disappeared years ago, and now comes the order of the Middlesex licensing justices that the ancient hostelry must be closed.

The inn, which was owned by Messrs. Charrington & Co., well-known brewers, has been in occupation up to the last, and although not in a bad state of repair and having nothing against its record, it was decided that it now had become unnecessary.

When the place actually was built no one can tell. "It was as old as the hills," said one of the district officials, "but we can give no more definite date than that."

It is curious how popular the house seems to have been with poets and dramatists of the Elizabethan era, seeing that the old town appears to have been always a byword for its "dirty and ill odors." The town is constantly referred to by Thomson, Gay, Goldsmith and others on account of its dirt, and it is the subject of one of Doctor Johnson's most famous gibes.

And yet, whenever Shakespeare and his friends had nothing better to do, they seem to have turned their footsteps westward to Brentford and there held high revel at the Three Pigeons. The house was the scene of some of George Peele's "Merry Jests," and Ben Jonson wrote, "We'll Tickle It at the Pigeons."

In Shakespeare's time it was occupied by one John Lowin, one of the tragedians who played at the old Globe theater.

Shakespeare not only refers to the town of Brentford in his plays, but specifically mentions in a sarcastic fashion the proprietress of a neighboring rival house, the Red Lion.

The house also is referred to in Butler's "Hudibras" as the headquarters of highwaymen, and later traditions connect Dick Turpin with it. Up to quite recent times there were mysterious accounts of locked doors found unlocked during the night and spectators at the foot of the beds of casual sojourners and shadows at the windows of nights.

In more modern times Brentford and the Three Pigeons are familiar to readers of Dickens. It was through Brentford that Little Oliver Twist was made to tramp by Bill Sikes on his way to the burglary at Shepperton, and the inn itself is mentioned in "Our Mutual Friend."

But little interest was manifest in the primary preference choice of presidents, at the election Monday and but few of those at the poles voted. Out of 20 republicans voting Wm. Alden Smith had 15 votes and Henry Ford five. Frederic gave Smith 14 and Ford 24. The complete returns from all the townships in the county combined gave Smith 67 and Ford 104.

Miss Florence Countryman arrived last Friday from Boyne City, and spent several days here visiting her parents, who are in the city on account of Mr. Countryman's health. Miss Countryman left Tuesday for Big Rapids to spend the remainder of her Spring vacation. She is a teacher of penmanship and drawing in the schools of Boyne City, and has been re-engaged to teach for another year with an increase in salary.

The Eastern Star members specially enjoyed their meeting last Thursday evening, when a banquet was served by the gentlemen members of the order. Mr. and Mrs. George Willis were initiated into the order that evening. Also Mrs. Moore, a past worthy grand matron, of Bay City was present and gave a very inspiring and interesting talk. The social part of the evening was especially pleasant and the ladies all said that they "thoroly enjoyed the men's banquet." C. C. Fink had charge of the banquet, so of course it was good.

We announced last week that Floyd Taylor had gone to Saginaw to enlist in the U. S. navy. He returned Sunday and stated that he had been accepted and sent to Columbus, Ohio for final examination and tests. The inspectors, he says, rejected him on account of one eye being slightly weaker than the other. Mr. Taylor was sorely disappointed as he had hoped to enter the service. He will try and get into some other branch of the service. Will Laurent also intends to enlist. He will try for the U. S. Marines. Recruiting stations are open in many cities thruout the state, the most convenient one for Grayling being at Saginaw. The government is asking for for enlistments and those wishing to enter the army or navy may make application to the Recruiting station at Saginaw.

CHAPTER XXV.—Continued.

"Poor devil!" Wertheimer said gently. "That was a sickening business, I admit. But who told you—"

"Never mind. It's true, isn't it?"

"Yes," the Englishman admitted gravely. "It's true. It lies at Bannan's door. When all's said, perhaps you won't believe me, but it's a fact I didn't know positively who was responsible till tonight."

"You don't really expect me to believe that? You were pretty thick with that gang."

"Ah, but on probation only! When they voted Roddy out I wasn't consulted. They kept me in the dark mostly—I flatter myself—because they knew I drew the line at murder. If I had known this you wouldn't believe, of course—Roddy'd be alive today."

"I'd like to believe you," Lanyard admitted. "But when you ask me to sign articles with that vicious assassin—"

"You can't play the game with clean hands," Wertheimer retorted.

Lanyard found no answer to that. "If you've said all you wished to," he suggested, rising, "I can assure you my answer is final—and go about my business."

"What's your hurry? Sit down. There's more to say—much more."

"As for instance—"

"I had a fancy you might like to put a question or two."

Lanyard shook his head. It was plain to him that Wertheimer designed to draw him out through his interest in Lucy Shannon.

"I haven't the slightest curiosity concerning any of your affairs," he observed.

"But you should have; I could tell you a great many interesting things that intimately affect your affairs, if I liked. You must understand that I shall hold the balance of power here from now on."

"Congratulations!" Lanyard laughed derisively.

"No joke, my dear chap. I've been promoted over the heads of your friends, De Morbihan and Popinot, and shall henceforth be—as they say in America—the whole works."

"By what warrant?"

"The illustrious Bannan's. I've been appointed his lieutenant—vice Gregg; deposed for bungling."

"Do you mean to tell me Bannan controls De Morbihan and Popinot?"

The Englishman smiled indulgently. "If you didn't know it, he's commander in chief of our allied forces, the presiding genius of the International Underworld, Unlimited."

"Bosh!" cried Lanyard contemptuously. "Why talk to me as if I were a child, to be frightened by any such boggy tale as that?"

"Take it or leave it, my friend. The fact remains, I know, if you don't, I confess I didn't tell tonight; but I've learned some things that have opened my eyes. You see, we had a table in a quiet corner at the Cafe de la Paix, and since the old man's sailing for home before long, it was naturally time for him to unobscure himself rather thoroughly to the one he leaves to act for him in London and Paris. I never suspected our power before he began to talk."

Lanyard, watching the man closely, would have sworn he had never seen one more sober. He was indescribably perplexed by this ostensible candor—mystified and mistrustful.

"And then there's this to be considered, from your side: Wertheimer resumed with the most businesslike manner. 'You can work with us without being obliged to deal in any way with the old man or De Morbihan or Popinot; you need never speak to either of them. Bannan will never cross the Atlantic again, and you can do pretty much as you like, within reason—subject to my approval, that is.'"

"One of us is mad," Lanyard commented profoundly.

"One of us is blind to his best interests," Wertheimer amended with entire good humor.

"Perhaps—let it go at that. I'm not interested—never did care for fairy tales."

"Don't go yet. There is still much to be said on both sides of our argument."

"Has there been one?"

"Besides, I promised you news from Antwerp."

"To be sure," Lanyard said, and paused, his curiosity at length engaged.

Wertheimer delivered into the breast-pocket of his dress coat and produced a blue telegraphic form, handing it to the adventurer.

Of even date, from Antwerp, it read: "Underworld, Paris. Gregg arrested today, departing steamer for America, after desperate struggle. Killed himself immediately afterward. Poison. No confession. Q. 2."

"Underworld?" Lanyard queried blankly.

"Our telegraphic address, of course. Q. 2 is our chief factor in Antwerp."

"So they got Gregg?"

"Stupid out!" Wertheimer observed; "I've no sympathy to waste on him. The whole affair was a blunder."

"But you got Gregg out and burned Troyon's—"

"Still our friends at the prefecture weren't satisfied. Something must have roused their suspicions."

"You don't know what?"

"There must have been a leak somewhere—"

"If so, it would certainly have led the police to me, after all the pains you were at to saddle me with the crime. There's something odder than mere treachery in this, Mr. Wertheimer."

"Perhaps you're right," said the other thoughtfully.

"And it doesn't speak well for the discipline of your precious organization—granting, for the sake of argument, the possibility of such nonsense."

"Well, well, have your own way about that. I don't insist, so long as you're agreeable to join forces with me."

"Oh, it's with you alone now—is it? Not with that insane boy, the International Underworld, Unlimited?"

Cheerfully the Englishman assented, nodding: "With me alone. I offer you a clear field. Go where you like, do what you will—I wouldn't have the effrontery to attempt to guide or influence you."

Lanyard kept himself in hand with considerable difficulty.

"But you?" he asked. "Where do you come in?"

Wertheimer lounged back in his chair and laughed quietly. "Need you ask? Must I recall to you the foundations of my prosperity? You had the name of it glib enough on your tongue that night in the Rue Chaplat. When you've done your work you'll come to me and split the proceeds fairly—and as long as you do that, never a syllable will pass my lips!"

"Blackmail!"

"Oh, if you insist! Odd, how displeasing I find that word!"

Abruptly the adventurer got to his feet. "By God!" he cried, "I'd better get out of this before I do you an injury."

The door slammed behind him on a room ringing with Wertheimer's unaffected laughter.

CHAPTER XXVI.

War.

Lanyard, weary with futile cruising, and being in the neighborhood of the Madeleine, sought the cab-rank there and moodily took his place at its end, silencing the motor and tapping into morose reflection so profound that nothing about him claimed place in his consciousness.

Thus it was that a brace of furtive thugs were able to slouch down the rank, scrutinizing it covertly, but in detail, pause opposite Lanyard's car under pretext of lighting cigarettes, identify him to their satisfaction, and take themselves hastily off—all without his knowledge.

And not until they had quite disappeared did the driver of the cab ahead dare warn him.

Lounging back carelessly, the latter looked the adventurer over inquisitively.

"It is, then," he inquired civilly, when Lanyard at length glanced around, annoyed by subconsciousness of the other's stare, "that you are in the bad books of that good General Popinot, my friend?"

"Eh—what's that you say?" Lanyard exclaimed, showing a countenance of blank misapprehension.

The man nodded wisely.

"He who is at odds with Popinot," he observed, "does well not to sleep in public. You did not see those two who passed just now and took your number—rats of Montmartre, if I know my Paris! You were dreaming, my friend, and it is my impression that only the presence of those two fliers over the way prevented your immediate assassination. If I were you, I should go away very quickly, and never stop till I had put stout walls between myself and Popinot."

A chill of apprehension sent a shiver stealing down Lanyard's spine.

"You're sure?"

"But of a certainty, my old one!"

"A thousand thanks."

Jumping down, the adventurer cranked the motor, sprang back to his seat, and was off like a hunted hare.

And when, more than an hour later, he brought his panting car to a pause in a quiet and empty back street of the Auteuil quarter, after a course that had involved the better part of Paris, it was with the conviction that he had beyond question shaken off pursuit—had there, in fact, been any attempt made to follow him.

He took advantage of that secluded spot to substitute false numbers for those he was licensed to display; then, at more sedate pace, followed the line of the fortifications northward as far as La Muette, where, branching off, he sought and made a circuit of two sides of the private park enclosing the home of Mme. Omber.

But the mansion showed no lights, and there was nothing in the aspect of the lodge and carriage entrance to lead him to believe that the chateau had as yet returned to Paris.

Now the night was still young, but Lanyard had his cab to dispose of and not a few other essential details to arrange before he could take definite steps toward the reincarnation of the Lone Wolf.

Picking a most circumspect route across the river—via the Pont Mirabeau—to the all-night telegraphic bureau in the Rue de Grenelle, he dispatched a cryptic message to the minister of war, then with the same pains to avoid notice made back toward the Rue des Acacias. But it wasn't possible to retrace the Seine covertly—in effect, at least—without returning the way he had come—a long detour that irked his impatient spirit to contemplate.

Unwisely he elected to cross by way of the Pont des Invalides—how unwisely was borne in upon him almost as soon as he turned from the brilliant Quai de la Conference into the darkling Rue Francoia, Premier; he had won scarcely twenty yards from the corner when, with a rush, his motor purring like some great tiger-cat, a powerful touring car swept up from behind, drawing abreast, but instead of passing, checked speed until its pace was even with his own.

Struck by the strangeness of this maneuver, he looked quickly round, to recognize the moonlike mask of De Morbihan grinning sardonically at him over the steering wheel of the black car.

A second hasty glance discovered four men in the back. With no time to identify them, Lanyard questioned their origin as little as their malign intent—Belleville bullets, beyond doubt, drafted from Popinot's batallions, with orders to bring in the Lone Wolf, dead or alive.

He had instant proof that his apprehensions were unexaggerated. Of a sudden De Morbihan cut out his engine's muffer and turned loose his electric horn. Between the deep-chested detonations of the exhaust and the mad, blatant yowling of the warning, a hideous clamor echoed and re-echoed in that quiet street—a racket in which the report of a revolver-shot was drowned out and went unnoticed.

Lanyard himself might have been unaware of it had he not caught, out of the corner of his eye, a flash of light that spat out at him like a flaming serpent's tongue, and heard the crash of the window behind him falling inward, shattered.

That the shot had no immediate successor was due almost wholly to Lanyard's instant and instinctive action.

Even before the crash of broken glass registered on his consciousness, he threw in the high speed and shot away like a frightened greyhound.

So sudden was this move that it caught De Morbihan himself unprepared. In an instant Lanyard had ten yards' lead. In another he was spinning on two wheels round an acute corner into the Rue Jean Goujon; and in a third, as he shot through that short block to the Avenue d'Antin, had increased his lead to fifteen yards, but he could never hope to better that—rather the contrary. The pursuer was the more powerful car, and captained, to boot, by one reputed to be the most daring, and skillful motorist in France.

As he swung from the Avenue d'Antin into the Rond Point des Champs-Elysees, the nose of the pursuing car lurched up, snoring, on his right, effectually preventing any attempt to strike off toward the east, to the boulevards and the center of the city's night life. He had no choice but to fly westward.

He cut an arc round the sextapartite park of the Rond Point that lost no inch of advantage, and straightened out up the Avenue des Champs-Elysees for the Place de l'Etoile, shooting madly in, and out through the tide of more leisurely traffic. And ever the motor of the touring car purred contentedly just at his elbow.

If there were police about, Lanyard saw nothing of them—not that he would have dreamed of stopping or even of checking speed for anything less than an immovable barrier.

But as the minutes sped it became apparent that there was to be no renewed attempt upon his life for the time being. The pursuers could afford to wait. And it came then to Lanyard that he drove no more alone. Death rode with him, his passenger.

Only when in full course for the Porte Dauphine did he appreciate De Morbihan's design. He was to be rushed out into the midnight solitude of the Bois de Boulogne and there run down and slain out of hand.

Now and again glances over his shoulder showed him no change in the gap between his own and the car of the assassins. But his motor ran sweet and true—humoring it, coaxing it, he contrived a little longer to hold his own.

Approaching the Porte Dauphine, he became aware of two sergeants de ville standing in the middle of the way and wildly waving their arms. He held on toward them relentlessly—it was their lives or his—and they leaped aside barely in time to save themselves.

And as he slipped into the park like a hunted shadow he fancied that he heard the sound of a pistol shot—whether directed at himself by the Apaches, or fired by the police to lend emphasis to their indignation, he couldn't say.

Bending low over the wheel, searching with anxious eyes the shadowed reaches of that winding drive, he steered for a time with one hand, while with the other he tore open his ulster and brought his pistol into readiness. Topping the brow of the incline, he heard above the whine of his motor the sharp clatter of a horse's hoofs and surmised that at last the police had given chase.

And then, on a slight down grade, though he took it at perilous speed and seemed veritably to ride the wind, the pursuing machine, aided by its greater weight, began to close in still more rapidly. Momentarily the hoarse roaring of its motor sounded more loud and menacing. It became a mere question of seconds.

Then inspiration of despair came to him, as wild as any that was ever conceived by brain of man.

They approached a point where a dense plantation walled the road on the left. To the right, a wide footwalk of asphalt separated the drive from a gentle declivity, sown with saplings, running down to the lake.

Rising in his place, Lanyard slipped from under him the heavy water-proof cushion that fitted the seat.

Then, edging over to the left of the middle of the road, abruptly he shut off power and applied the brakes with all his might.

From its terrific speed the taxicab came to a stop almost within its length.

Lanyard was thrown forward against the wheel, but having braced in anticipation, escaped injury and effected instant recovery.

The car of the Apaches was upon him in a pulse beat. With no least warning of his intention, De Morbihan had no time to employ brakes. Lanyard saw its dark shape flash past the windows of his cab and heard a shout of triumph. Then, with all his might, he flung the heavy cushion across that scant space, directly into the face of De Morbihan.

It flew straight and true.

In alarm, unable to comprehend the nature of that great, dark, whirling mass, De Morbihan attempted to lift a warning elbow. He was too slow—the cushion caught him full force on the side of the head, and before he could recover or guess what he was doing, he had twisted the wheel sharply to the right.

The car, running at little less than locomotive speed, shot like a projectile from a cannon's mouth across that strip of sidewalk, caught its right fore wheel against a sapling, swung heavily broadside to the drive, and turned completely over as it shot down the gentle slope to the lake.

The terrific crash of this catastrophe was followed by a hideous chorus of oaths, shrieks, cries and groans.

Promptly Lanyard started his motor

"I'd Better Get Out of This Before I Do You an Injury."

A Flash of Fire Spat Out at Him.

anew and, trembling in every limb, ran on for several hundred yards. But time pressed, and the usefulness of his car was at an end as far as he was concerned; there was no saying how many times its identity might not have been established in the course of that wild chase through Paris, or how soon the police might contrive to overhail and apprehend him; and as soon as a bend in the road shut off the scene of the wreck, he stopped finally, jumped down, and plunged headlong into the dark midnight heart of the Bois, seeking its silences where trees stood thickest and lights were few.

Later, like some furtive, worried creature of the night—panting, disheveled, his rough clothing stained and muddled—he slunk across an open space a mile from his point of disappearance, dropped cautiously down to the dry bed of the moat, climbed as stealthily the slippery side of the fortifications, darted across the inner boulevard, and began to describe a wide arc to his destination, the Omber house.

CHAPTER XXVII.

On the Back Trail.

Innocent of either satisfaction or any sort of exultation over his escape and the downfall of his enemies, Lanyard's mood was dark. The longer he pondered the affair, the more inexplicable it bulked to his understanding. He had never expected to defy the pack and get off lightly; but he had anticipated no overt attempt to discipline him pending proof of insincerity in his purpose to reform. A retired competitor hadn't to be feared.

Either Wertheimer hadn't believed him or Bannan had rejected the report presumably carried him by Lucy Shannon—at all events, they hadn't waited for Lanyard to demonstrate his will. They hadn't bothered to declare war; with less warning than a rattlesnake gives they had struck—out of the dark—at his back.

And so Lanyard swore grimly—even so would he strike, now that it was his turn. In this temper he arrived, past one in the morning, under the walls of the Omber place.

Now if it were violation of the tenets of his craft to revisit premises once successfully entered, he showed them at the least the prudent deference of selecting a fresh point of attack—one chosen earlier, in the course of his first circuit of the walls. It hadn't escaped him then that this brick-and-plaster construction was in bad repair; he had marked down several places where the weather had eaten the outer coat of plaster altogether away. At the first of these, midway between the avenue and the junction of the side streets, he hesitated.

As he had foreseen, the mortar that bound the wall together was crumbling. It was no great task to work loose one of the exposed bricks, establishing a foothold to a position whence his other hand, gloved, could seize the top of the wall, cast the ulster neatly over the glass-paned upper curbing and, thus protected, swing himself bodily atop the thing.

But there, momentarily, he paused in doubt. In that singularly exposed and comfortable position, noted ten feet above the lifeless street on the one hand and with the black mystery of the neglected park on the other, he was seized and shaken by a sudden and unexpressed revulsion of feeling in no way colored by any sort of alarm.

He was afraid of himself—he, the grim and deadly thing that walked by night, the Lone Wolf, the creature of pillage and rapine, the scourged slave of that self which knew no law. And for a little longer he lingered there in trembling, not knowing whether he was to go back or go forward.

Then slowly that terror passed like the lifting of a nightmare from the brain of a sleeper, and with a start, with a little shiver and a sigh, Lanyard went forward as one driven.

Dropping to the ground with an impact muffled by the soft, damp turf, he made himself one with the shadow of the park, as silent, as intangible, as fugitive as they, until presently he came out beneath the stars, on the open lawn running up to the wing that housed the library.

From one of the library windows a shallow stone balcony jutted out eight feet above the lawn—a height so insignificant that, with one bound, grasping its stone balustrade, the adventurer was upon it in a brace of seconds.

Nor did the windows—long French windows, opening inward—offer any considerable obstacle; a penknife expeditiously removed the old, dry putty round one of the small, lozenge-shaped panes, then dislodged the pane itself; his hand through this opening readily found and turned the latch; a cautious pressure created an opening between the two wings wide enough to permit the passage of his body, and—he stood inside the library, refastening the latch.

He had made no sound and, thanks to thorough prior acquaintance with the combination of the safe, he needed no light. The screen of cinnabar afforded him all the protection he required; and because he meant to accomplish his purpose and be out of the house with almost inconceivable swiftness, he didn't even trouble to explore the household—beyond a swift and casual survey of the adjoining salons.

The clock in the reception hall chimed the three-quarters as he encoined himself between screen and safe and grasped the combination-knob.

But he did not turn it. That mellow music died out slowly and left him untrusting in the silence and gloom, his eyes staring wide into blackness at nothing, his jaw set and rigid, his knitted forehead damp with sweat, his hands tightly clenched and that the nails bit painfully into the flesh of his palms, while he looked back over the abyss that yawned between the Lone Wolf of tonight and the man who had, within the week, knelt before that safe in company with the woman he loved, bent on making restitution of his theft that his sibil might be saved through her faith in him.

He closed his eyes to shut out the accusing darkness, and knelt on untrusting, save as he shuddered now and again with the sickness of a strong man rent in the conflict of man's dual nature.

Minutes passed without his knowledge in the crisis of that struggle.

But at length he grew more calm; his hands relaxed, the muscles of his brow smoothed out, he breathed more slowly and more deeply, his set lips parted and through them a profound sigh escaped, whispering through the stillness.

A great weariness was upon him as he rose slowly and heavily from the floor and stood erect, no longer the slave of self, but his master, free at last and for all time from that ancient evil which so long had held his soul in bondage.

And then, in that moment of victory, through the deep hush reigning in that house, he heard a sound of an incautious footfall on the parquet of the hallway.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

A Meeting by the Safe.

It was a sound so slight, so very small and still, that only a supersensitive sense of hearing could have distinguished it from the confused multiplicity of almost inaudible, interwoven sounds, that go to make the slumberous quiet by night of that essentially animate organism, the human habitation.

Lanyard, whose training had taught him how to listen, had early learned that the least sound of a footfall is to be differentiated from that of another as readily as the respiration of two sleepers may be discriminated. He knew that every house had its singular cadence, its own gentle movement of muted but harmonious sounds wherein the introduction of alien sounds produced instant discord.

Now, in the muted voice of this vast mansion, he had detected a little flutter of discordance, sounding a note of stealth—such a note as no move of his own since entering had evoked.

And while 'anyard stood at alert attention the sound was repeated from a point less distant. This new intruder was moving through the salons to the library.

In two swift strides Lanyard left the shelter of the screen and encoined himself in the recess of one of the tall windows, behind its heavy velvet hangings.

That movement could have been timed no more precisely had it been rehearsed. He was barely in hiding when a shape of shadow slipped into the library, paused beside the massive desk and raked the room with a powerful flash-lamp.

He Lingered There in Trembling.

Its initial glare struck full and dazzlingly into Lanyard's eyes as he peered through a narrow opening in the portiere.

When at length his vision cleared the other was kneeling in turn before the safe—or, rather, rising from a kneeling position there, for more light was needed, and this one, lacking the patience of his studious caution, turned back to the desk, seized the electric reading lamp and transferred it to the floor between the safe and the screen.

But even before she had put down the lamp Lanyard had recognized the woman; before the swift flood of light followed the dull click of the switch he knew that she was Lucy Shannon.

He felt dazed, half-stunned, suffocated—much as he had felt with Gregg's fingers tightening on his windpipe that week-old night at Troyon's.

For an instant he experienced real difficulty about breathing and was conscious of a sickish throbbing in his temples, while the bounding in his bosom was as the tolling of a great bell. He stared, swaying like a man who has been struck a heavy blow.

In one breath he swore it could not, and knew it must, be she.

COCKNEY AN OLD DIALECT

Writer Asserts That Peculiar Pronunciations Have Been in Use for Hundreds of Years.

Cockney speech has found a defender in Mr. Mackenzie MacBride, who undertakes to show that Cockney is no modern dialect or corrupted form of the King's English, but that it is of ancient and honorable lineage running back for nearly a thousand years.

It is pointed out that when the person "born within the sound of Bow bells," says "thot" for "that," "benk" for "bank," and "byllit" for "ballist," he is really guilty of no corruption of the English language, since these pronunciations have obtained not only in London but in Kent and Surrey for hundreds of years.

In like manner is justified "abaht" and "ahtside" for "about" and "outside." It is suggested that many Londoners have been laughed out of these "ancient and excellent" pronunciations. Mr. MacBride earnestly urges them not to change their speech because of any uncalled-for animadversions against it.

Whether Mr. MacBride be correct or not in his contention, it is a fact that Cockney has survived for many centuries in the midst of speech that is deemed more cultured. It is a curious fact that in the Bahamas islands, which were settled more than 200 years ago by Londoners, the Cockney speech is as strong as it is in Cheapside.

Groped in the Dark.

An investigation of the beginnings of big business men has been conducted for the American Magazine by Hugh S. Fullerton.

"An astonishing feature of this investigation," he says, "is that so few of these men who have attained large successes remember the turning point in their lives until it is recalled to them. They never thought of it, yet when the idea was explained, every one of them could put his finger upon the exact place at which they turned toward success. It was astounding to find that the majority of them were merely floundering through life without definite aim or purpose up to that point and that from that point on they saw the course plainly and worked with positive purpose toward an end."

"They were groping blindly and could not see an opening until it came almost as an inspiration. Yet each one with whom I talked claimed to see clearly the turning points and the opportunities of others."

Realistic Touch.

"Lots of realism in this book."

"How's that?"

"The author describes a meeting of anarchists."

"Yes?"

"And the president of the society takes out an ingersoll to see what time it is."

HE HAS HAD GRAND CROPS

And Likes the Laws in Western Canada.

"I lived near Lee, Illinois, for 46 years. I came to Saskatchewan in the spring of 1912 and bought land near Brercrest. I have farmed this land, 1880 acres, ever since. I have had grand crops. In 1914 I had 100 acres of wheat that yielded 40 bushels to the acre. I sold this wheat at $1.50 per bushel. I like the country and my neighbors."

There is No War Tax So Called.

My taxes on each quarter section (136 acres) are about $32 a year. This covers municipal tax, school tax, hall insurance tax—everything. There is no war tax so-called. I like the laws in force here. There is no compulsion to me in any way. I am just as independent here as I was in Illinois, and I feel that my family and I are just as well protected by the laws of the province as we were in our old home in Illinois. What I earn here is my own. I have seven children and they take their places at school, in sports and at all public gatherings the same as the Canadian born.

(Sgd.) M. P. Tysdal.

February 9th, 1916.

We reprint the following article, complete, without comment, from the latest number of the "Saskatchewan Farmer," an agricultural paper published at Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan:

Former Iowa Farmers Are Doing Well in Canada.

The attempt to check emigration from the United States to our prairie provinces by publishing alarming ing statements about the enormous war taxes that are being paid here—$500 on a quarter section yearly—about forcing young men to enlist for the war; about the cold, no crops and any old story that by its extravagant boldness might influence men and women from venturing north to Canada, is really in the list of curios to our people. Knowing the country, we can hardly take it seriously. Our governments, however, dominant and provincial, are taking steps to expose the false statements that are being made, and thereby keep the channel open for continuing the stream of settlers that has been flowing to us for the past decade.—Advertisement.

Her Interim.

Former Secretary of War Garrison said in a Camden war argument: "Ignorance! Military ignorance! Why, it's as bad as the etymological ignorance of the Camden girl."

"A young man was praising a Philadelphia restaurant to a Camden girl. 'It's so deuced popular,' he said, 'that you have to engage your table three days in advance.' Then he laughed and added, 'But they feed you so well that it's worth while going without food in the interim.'"

SCANDINAVIAN NEWS

SUMMARY OF IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS IN FAR OFF NORTHLAND.

ITEMS FROM THE OLD HOME

Resume of the Most Important Events in Sweden, Norway and Denmark—Of Interest to the Scandinavians in America.

It now seems fairly settled that the conference of Scandinavian ministers of state at Copenhagen was not called because of any pending situation affecting Scandinavia as a whole, but anticipatory of problems expected to arise in the near future. It was considered desirable, especially by Sweden, that the outlook be discussed and the argument be renewed for joint action on questions affecting the three countries alike. This does not necessarily mean that these nations will take up jointly any dispute of a single country, but that they will be sure to act vigorously together where the principle involved applies to all. No immediate action is expected as the result of the conference, as neither Denmark nor Norway is excited or alarmed because of the British examination of parcel post packages and relations are not regarded as seriously impaired. The ministers who attended the conference, however, made no attempt to disguise the grave apprehension of all the Scandinavian countries concerning the future and there was a wholesome agreement that it was necessary to have a complete and thorough understanding of the situation and a continued effort to place the neutrality of Scandinavia on such a high plane that it would be bound to be recognized as impartial by the belligerents. In this respect, the ministers were in complete accord. The coming spring and summer are regarded as crucial to the northern countries because of the possible naval activities in the Baltic sea and the attempts by both sides to give effect to their respective blockades. Scandinavia depends upon export and import trade, and their stoppage would cause genuine disaster. As the situation develops during the spring, there probably will be other conferences while many who are well informed believe that should the worst fears be realized, America might be asked to use her good offices as the greatest neutral power in favor of smaller states, although such action is not contemplated at present.

SWEDEN.

Prince Royal Oscar Frederick William Gustaf Adolf, duke of Skane and crown prince of Sweden, is playing an important part in the present diplomatic negotiations that may mean so much to his land. While Sweden is trying by every dignified means to keep out of the European war, the present British blockade and fear of Russia is causing the royal family to indicate a leaning toward Germany. The crown prince is a strong advocate of preparedness for his country. His wife, the crown princess, is English by birth, having been the Princess Margaret of Connaught, granddaughter of Queen Victoria. The royal couple are thirty-four years old each. Their four children are Prince Gustav Adolf, Prince Sigvard, Princess Ingrid and Princess Bertil.

For centuries relics from ancient times have been picked out of the ground in the island of Gotland; but still finds are made from time to time. The following is a list of those who have recently sent relics to Otto Jansen, the national antiquarian. In each case the object as well as the price paid by the antiquarian are given: K. Anderson, a Byzantine gold coin, $5.40; J. Soderlund, a bronze buckle, $1.35; Erik Bergstrom, a flint dagger, $4.80; Anna Oleson, a stone ax, 95 cents; A. Ostergren, several objects, $5.40.

The king has authorized the department of public instruction to call all the principals of the normal schools of the country to a meeting at Stockholm this spring for the discussion of matters pertaining to those schools; but the meeting must not last over three days.

Two bronze swords about two feet long have been found at Sturko, Blekinge. They are supposed to have been made about 1,000 years before the Christian era.

The general telephone service installed 5,000 new apparatus in Stockholm during the past year. The calls now average about 500,000 a day.

A woman at Alnus, who died at the age of ninety-three years, was mourned by 71 descendants.

All Swedish shipping lines between western Sweden and European British ports are being consolidated by the Swedish Lloyd, according to consular dispatches to the state department. The combined companies will have a fleet of 50 steamers with a tonnage of 100,000.

The Swedish steamer Ask has been damaged near the Nordhinder lightship and is now being towed into port by the Norwegian steamer Lisheth. The Ask is a vessel of 1,134 tons. Her home port is Stockholm.

Robbers killed the cashier and a woman clerk in the branch of the Arbetsforeningens bank at Stockholm and escaped with $43,000.

It has been confirmed that the Swedish steamer Martha, which was lost near Falsterbo a fortnight ago, was sunk by a German mine inside Swedish territorial waters.

Gas is being produced from peat as an experiment at the Klara gas works. The results are not known at this writing.

DENMARK.

The report that the Danish government might reopen the old question of the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States has attracted attention to the industrial and economic conditions there at the present time. In answer to inquiries from the United States it may be said that the conditions are most unsatisfactory both on this island and the island of St. Croix. There is a serious depression in trade and scarcely any money in circulation in St. Thomas. This is chiefly due to the European war and the closing of the Panama canal. The chief industry of the island has always been the supplying of coal and water and other necessities to ships; but this is now practically at a standstill, particularly because of the suspension of the steamship service of the Hamburg-American line. This company gave employment to a large number of laborers and others, the majority of whom have had to emigrate to Santo Domingo or other agricultural islands in order to make a livelihood. The Hamburg-American line has, more than was heretofore realized, been the main support of the island, disbursing a large sum of money annually. An extensive system of harbor works, with an up-to-date dock and all modern appliances such as electrical cranes, warehouses and oil tanks, was recently completed here and with the opening of the Panama canal it was expected that a great trade would develop. But the slides in the canal have prevented these hopes from being realized. On the island of St. Croix the strike which has paralyzed the sugar industry for a time was a serious matter. The island, very much more so than St. Thomas, is agricultural, and this year's production of sugar and rum promises to be exceptional. Following the formation of labor unions, the laborers on the sugar estates contended that with the increased prices for sugar they should be paid more wages, but this was refused by the planters. Thousands of the workers were turned off the estates and fled, with personal belongings, to the towns of Frederiksted and Christiansted, where for the past month they have been living in tents and thatched houses and school buildings. A wage concession has ended the strike. Notwithstanding the unsettled conditions, there have been few disorders, except for a small amount of suspected incendiarism. The government has recently passed several bills looking to the improvement of the laborers of both islands, including the parceling out among them of small lots of land under certain conditions. If these measures are carried out they should improve the situation greatly.

The population of Denmark is very close to the three million mark. According to the first summary of the recent census the country had 2,919,798 inhabitants February 1, 1916. The increase for the past five years was 162,000, or 1.13 per cent annually; during the five-year period of 1906-1911 the increase was 155,000, or 1.27 per cent annually, and during the five-year period of 1901-1906 it was 138,000, or 1.11 per cent annually.

NORWAY.

Great difficulties have been placed in the way of importation of copper. For the last months past next to no copper has been imported to Norway on account of the threats of the English to capture it. Business men have conferred with the British foreign department and it is said that the English have laid down the following rules: Norway may import copper freely at the rate of imports immediately preceding the war. If more is wanted it may be had on condition that Norway export to England a corresponding amount of raw copper from Norway. But the chances are that Norway will not accept this offer. Norwegian raw copper, which is now exported to Hel-singborg, is much more expensive than electrolytic copper. Owing to the great number of electric plants which are in process of construction this matter is of great importance.

The city government of Bergen has decided to see that the rebuilding of the burnt portion of the city is done in a rational manner. The city is to take possession of the whole ground; the price of each parcel to be established by agreement, or eventually by compulsory expropriation. When this is done the streets will be rearranged in the most practical manner. In order to be reasonably sure of getting the very best plan for the district the city will invite all Scandinavians to a competition. So far no prizes have been announced, but they will no doubt be liberal.

It is only a few years since the national government bought 3,000 acres of timber land in Espedalen. The price paid was $21,600. By the end of the year 1914 logs had been sold for $24,000. Thus the state has 3,000 acres of timber land for nothing, and a few thousand dollars in cash besides.

The Norwegian bark Dagmar, bound from America for Norway, has been lost in the North sea with her entire crew. It is supposed the Dagmar struck a mine.

The arrival at Copenhagen of the Norwegian steamer Kong-lige in charge of a British prize crew of six men is reported by Reuters' Copenhagen correspondent. The Kong-lige was stopped by a British submarine and ordered to proceed to Leth. Her coal supply was insufficient and she put in at Copenhagen.

In former years only small quantities of sardines have been caught in the Christiania fjord. But this season the catch is very heavy. Some fishing smacks have hauled as much as 1,200 bushel baskets in a night. The price is so high that a night's haul may be worth from $2,500 to $3,000. Much of the fish is rushed to the famous canneries in Stavanger.

The Norwegian steamer Langelle was sunk and its engineer killed. Sixteen survivors were rescued.

ZEPPELINS RAID ENGLISH COAST

MAKE TWO RAIDS INSIDE OF TWENTY-FOUR HOURS—ONE CAPTURED.

MANY PERSONS WERE KILLED

Eight Dwelling Houses Were Demolished and Serious Fires Started—Many Bombs Dropped.

London—The coast of Scotland and the northern and southeastern counties of England were attacked by Zeppelins Sunday night, according to an official announcement by the secretary of war.

The announcement says: "A Zeppelin raid took place Sunday night, when the coast of Scotland and the northern and southeastern counties of England were attacked. Bombs were dropped at various places. No details are available."

London—At least 16 persons were killed and about 100 others injured by the explosion of bombs dropped in another raid of Zeppelin dirigible balloons over the northeast coast of England Saturday night—the second raid within 48 hours.

The official version of the raid says: "Two airships approached the northeast coast. Only one crossed the coast. The other turned back. For the present, we know that 16 persons were killed and about 100 injured."

"Eight dwelling houses were demolished and a serious fire was caused in a French polishing shop."

A correspondent in a northeast coast town says that a Zeppelin was sighted there. It dropped 14 explosive and seven incendiary bombs.

Ten men, three women and three children were killed and 25 persons were seriously injured. In addition, about 80 others received minor injuries.

A tram car inspector was killed and a woman tram conductor suffered the loss of a leg. Several houses were wrecked in one street. One house was demolished, but the family of five escaped without serious injury.

Further details of the raid in which at least five Zeppelins took part, one of them being lost and the survivors of the crew captured, were issued by the war office.

The gradual repairing of the telegraph and telephone communications, damaged in the recent storm, made possible the compilation of a more complete list of the casualties.

These are now given as: 43 killed and 66 wounded. The earlier partial figures, given out mentioned 28 killed and 44 injured.

THE BRANDEIS NOMINATION

How the Two Months Investigation Has Resulted.

Washington—After two months' investigation the senate judiciary subcommittee voted three to two, to recommend confirmation of the president's appointment of Louis D. Brandeis to be associate justice of the United States supreme court. The vote was divided along party lines. Senators Chilton, Walsh and Fletcher, democrats, voting for Brandeis, and Senators Cummins and Works, republicans, voting against him. The subcommittee's report will be submitted to the whole committee and an early recommendation to the senate will be made.

The full committee is expected to report to the senate, again by a strict party vote. A member of the judiciary committee, who has had special charge of the matter on the democratic side, said that he expects Mr. Brandeis to be confirmed again by a strict party vote.

"I know no democrat will vote against confirmation," he said, "and I have yet to find the republican who is going to vote for confirmation."

RUSSIANS LOSE MANY MEN

A Month of Fierce Fighting Takes Toll of 140,000 Men.

London—That the new Russian offensive has collapsed after a month of fierce fighting, with a loss to the Russians of at least 140,000 men, is asserted in an official statement issued in Berlin by the German headquarters staff.

More than 500,000 men were engaged on the Russian side, according to Berlin, and the expenditure of ammunition by the attacking forces is declared to have been on an unprecedented scale for the eastern front.

SCHOOL HEAD TAKES HIS LIFE

Was Superintendent of Lansing School.

Lansing was shocked to learn that Edward P. Cummings, superintendent of schools for 10 years in that city, took his life Friday in the Stratford hotel, Chicago. He recently returned from a trip to Florida, where he had gone for his health. Last December, Mr. Cummings accidentally shot himself at his home while cleaning a shotgun.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Chester Lorrain, 24 years old, who posed as Keith Edward Dalrymple, heir to a $400,000 estate at Port Allegheany, Pa., was sentenced to state prison for five years for passing worthless checks.

San Francisco—Franz Bopp, German consul-general and others indicted in the so-called bomb plot must go to trial according to decision in the United States district court by Judge Maurice T. Dooling.

IS GIVEN SIMPLE FUNERAL SERVICE

DR. JAMES BURRILL ANGELL.

Ann Arbor—Between two lines of students, alumni and friends of the University of Michigan, extending from the president's house on the campus, for more than a mile to Forest Hill cemetery, President Emeritus James B. Angell, who died here Saturday, was borne to his final resting place Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

All places of business closed during the hour of the service. After the Episcopal burial service, which was read by the Rev. Lloyd Douglass, of the Congregational church, and just as the body of Dr. Angell was being borne to the hearse, the University of Michigan Glee club sang the "Laudes Atque Carmina," one of the old Michigan anthems which President Angell loved. In addition a special quartet sang "Lead, Kindly Light," during the service.

WAITE WANTS DEATH CHAIR

In His Fourth Confession He Admits Killing Both Pecks.

New York—Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, the dentist under indictment for poisoning his father-in-law, John E. Peck, the Grand Rapids millionaire, made a new confession—his fourth. He sent for his lawyer, Walter R. Deuel, and made a long statement which Deuel, at Waite's request, made public.

"I want to go to the electric chair," Waite said. "I do not fear death—in fact, I seek death. It is the only atonement I can make for my crimes. My conscience has been quickened."

"It is true, and there is no sense in offering a defense, that I murdered both my mother-in-law and my father-in-law. I have confessed the truth to District Attorney Swann, who has been very kind to me. He knew the facts a week ago and what I am saying now is merely an amplification and explanation of what was published several days ago."

"If people ask why a young man of my opportunities in life, of my education and social position, fell so low as to kill his benefactors, they can be told that it was solely and simply for the greed of money. I wanted money, a lot of it, and I was not willing to wait until it came to me naturally and honorably."

THE "PORK" BARREL

Rivers and Harbors Appropriation Bill Is Startling.

Washington—Ten rivers with a combined tonnage of less than 3,000,000 annually would receive more than half of the $39,000,000 carried in the omnibus rivers and harbors appropriation bill now under consideration in the house of representatives. The remaining half is divided among 250 projects, of which 20 ocean and Great Lakes harbors alone produce over 300,000,000 tons of freight annually.

These startling figures, indicating where most of the waterways pork is dispensed, were produced by Rep. James A. Frear, of Wisconsin, in a speech in opposition to the bill. Mr. Frear offered a substitute whereby the appropriation would be reduced to $15,000,000, all to be spent in the maintenance of harbors and waterways actually contributing to commerce.

TELEGRAPHIC FLASHES

Petrograd—The Russian hospital ship Portugal was sunk in the Black sea by a German submarine with the loss of 115 lives.

London—An order in council has been issued that "neither a vessel nor her cargo shall be immune from capture for a breach of blockade on the sole ground that she at the moment is on her way to a non-blockaded port."

Toronto, Ont.—Commanded by former officers of the U. S. army and Marine corps, the American Legion, with its nearly 5,000 enlisted men, is evoking great interest in Canadian military circles and is already held up as an example for training and discipline.

Washington—Investigation of the army aviation services has been completed by a special board appointed by the war department. Upon the nature of the effort of Senator Robinson of Arkansas to have congress investigate the aviation corps.

London—Two thousand munition workers are now on strike in the Clyde district and reports from Glasgow labor troubles threaten to spread. Less than 400 strikers have returned to work, in spite of the pressure of union leaders.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of drinking phosphated hot water each morning, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nervous wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from any druggist or at the store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.—Adv.

To Be Exact.

Sudden Death

Caused by Disease of the Kidneys

The close connection between the heart and the kidneys is well known nowadays. When kidneys are diseased, arterial tension is increased and the heart functions are attacked. When the kidneys no longer pour forth waste, uric acid poisoning occurs and the person dies, and the cause is often given as heart disease, or disease of brain or lungs.</

Insomnia

Indigestion, nearly always disturbs the sleep more or less, and is often the cause of insomnia. Eat a light supper with little if any meat, and no milk; also take one of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper, and see if you do not rest much better. Obtainable everywhere.

Lovells.

Edith Schreves of Grayling is spending her vacation at her grandparents.

A. Nephew moved back to the farm Sunday after spending the winter months in town.

Claude Smith, wife and Mrs. Bill drove to West Branch by auto the latter part of last week.

W. E. Busted returned to his home in West Branch Monday accompanied by his daughter Mrs. T. E. Douglas and children who will remain for a few days to visit relatives there.

E. S. Houghton of Grayling was a Lovells caller Saturday.

Dr. McKinnon and wife of Lewiston were in town Tuesday. The former being called to attend Fred Rase and family who are very ill.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Wakely and Mr. Wakely's mother and sister all of Sigbee spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Hanna.

Mrs. T. Masters returned to her home in West Branch after spending several weeks with her daughter Mrs. E. H. Parker and family.

J. Vance shipped a can of cream to The Saginaw Creamery March 29th. This is the first shipment of the kind made from Lovells. Mr. Vance was much pleased with his check and states there is good money in sending the cream to the creamery.

Charles Miller and mother returned home Tuesday from Grayling.

The school attendance is very low due to the epidemic of the measles.

Percy Budd and family are enjoying a visit with Mr. Budd's mother, whose home is in the upper peninsula.

A shingling bee was given J. McCormick by a dozen of his friends as slating him in shingling his cottage located on the farm he recently purchased from T. F. Morris.

F. J. Spencer is busy decorating the rooms of the club house and getting them in readiness for the fishing season.

Joan Kennedy entertained a number of her girl friends Saturday afternoon at luncheon in honor of her 6th birthday.

Mrs. Caid was a Lewiston caller Saturday.

MAT KINNEY NOW BOOSTS

Decatur Man Tells Friends All About His Relief From Stomach Ills.

Mat Kinney, of Decatur, Michigan, a widely known farmer of that section, takes pleasure these days in telling his friends how use of Tanlac, the "Master Medicine," has given him relief from stomach trouble. A few days ago he made the following statement:

"For a long time I suffered from stomach trouble and flatulency and could get no permanent relief. I would always suffer from gas, after eating. Severe pains in my stomach would cause me much trouble. I had a fine appetite, but my digestion was extremely poor. I suffered from malnutrition.

"Tanlac was recommended to me and began its use. To date I feel very much relieved. I do not bloat any more. I suffer no more from gas or sour stomach. I seem to have more energy and am feeling fine. Tanlac is the first medicine to help me and I can praise it highly."

Tanlac may be obtained here at the store of A. M. Lewis.

Safe Medicine for Children.

"Is it safe?" is the first question to be considered when buying cough medicine for children. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has long been a favorite with mothers of young children as it contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. It is pleasant to take, too, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. This remedy is most effective in relieving coughs, colds and croup. Obtainable everywhere.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it thru the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists. Price 75 cents per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

For Sale.

Lots numbered five and six, on the northwest corner of block twenty-eight, Roffee's addition can be bought cheap for cash. A fine location.

A desirable lot for a dwelling in Brink's addition.

40 acres, one-half mile from the village; 7 acres in pasture; entire 40 fenced. About ten acres low land, balance good farming land; sawing timber removed. Price $600.00.

10 acres improved land, all fenced nearly opposite T-town; one mile north of village; just right to be divided into large village lots for workmen in the mills and yards, and purchaser can double his money. Can be bought for $200.00.

O. Palmer.

Why Constipation Injures.

The bowels are the natural sewerage system of the body. When they become obstructed by constipation a part of the poisonous matter which they should carry off is absorbed into the system, making you feel dull and stupid, and interfering with the digestion and assimilation of food. This condition is quickly relieved by Chamberlain's Tablets. Obtainable everywhere.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage where by the power therein contained to sell by the power thereto, made by William Fairbairn of the village of Grayling, county of Crawford and State of Michigan, to Thorwald W. Hanson of the village of Grayling in said county of Crawford, dated the 29th day of December, A. D. 1914, in Liber I of Mortgages on pages 117 to 120 thereof, on which said mortgage there is claimed to be the sum of Two Hundred One Dollars and Thirty-seven cents and also the legal charges of sale and the attorney's fee provided by law, and no proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, under the power of sale contained in said mortgage, notice is hereby given that on Friday, the 28th day of April, 1916, at one o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the front door of the court house, in the village of Grayling, in said county of Crawford (that being the place of holding the circuit court for the county in which said mortgaged premises are situated) said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale at public auction to the highest bidder of the premises described in said mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage with interests and legal costs, which said premises are situated in the village of Grayling, county of Crawford and State of Michigan and described as follows, to wit: Lots three and four of Block Twenty-five of Roffee's Addition to the village of Grayling as recorded in the office of the register of deeds of Crawford County, Michigan, Dated, January 31st, 1916.

SUPPLEMENT TO CRAWFORD AVALANCHE

GRAYLING, CRAWFORD COUNTY, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1916.

ANNUAL TAX SALE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN.

The Circuit Court for the County of Crawford, in Chancery.
In the matter of the petition of Oramel B. Fuller, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

On reading and filing the petition of the Auditor General of the State of Michigan, praying for a decree in favor of the State of Michigan, against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts therein specified, claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each such parcel of land, and that such lands be sold for the amounts so claimed by the State of Michigan.
It is ordered that said petition be brought on for hearing and decree at the regular term of this Court, to be held at Grayling in the County of Crawford, State of Michigan, on the tenth day of April, A. D. 1916, at the opening of the Court on that day, and that all persons interested in such lands or any part thereof, desiring to contest the lien claimed thereon by the State of Michigan, for such taxes, interest and charges, or any part thereof, shall appear in said Court, and file with the clerk thereof, their objections thereto on or before the first day of the term of this Court above mentioned, and that in default thereof the same will be taken as confessed and the lands shall be sold as prayed for in said petition. And it is further ordered that in pursuance of said decree the lands described in said petition for which a decree of sale shall be made, will be sold for the several taxes, interest and charges thereon, and each such parcel, on the first Tuesday in May thereafter, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. on said day, or on the day or days subsequent thereto as may be necessary to complete the sale of said lands and of each and every parcel thereof, at the office of the County Treasurer, or at such convenient place as shall be selected by him at the county seat of the County of Crawford, State of Michigan; and that the sale then and there made will be a public sale, and each parcel described in the decree shall be separately exposed for sale for the total taxes, interest and charges, and the sale shall be made to the person paying the full amount charged against such parcel, and accepting a conveyance of said parcel, and the same shall be taken as a conveyance of less than the entire thereof, then the whole parcel shall be offered and sold. If any parcel of land cannot be sold for taxes, interest and charges, such parcel shall be passed over for the time being, and shall, on the succeeding day, or before the close of the sale, be reoffered, and if, on such second offering, or during such sale, the same cannot be sold for the amount aforesaid, the County Treasurer shall bid off the same in the name of the State.

Witness, the Hon. Nelson Sharpe, Circuit Judge, and the seal of said Circuit Court of Crawford County, this 18th day of February, A. D. 1916.

STATE OF MICHIGAN

To the Circuit Court for the County of Crawford, in Chancery:
The petition of Oramel B. Fuller, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, respectfully shows that the list of lands hereinafter set forth and marked Schedule A, contains a description of all the lands in said County of Crawford upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein, and which were returned as delinquent for non-payment of taxes, and which taxes have not been paid together with the total amount of such taxes, with interest computed thereon to the time fixed for sale, and collection fee and expenses, as provided by law, extended against each of said parcels of land.

Your petitioner further shows that said lands were returned to the Auditor General under the provisions of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, as delinquent for non-payment of said taxes for said years respectively, and that said taxes remain unpaid, except that lands included in said "Schedule A" for taxes of 1890 or prior years were returned to the Auditor General as delinquent for said taxes under the provisions of the general tax laws in force prior to the passage of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1893, and which taxes remain unpaid.

Your petitioner further shows that in all cases where lands are included in "Schedule A" as aforesaid for taxes of 1890 or of any prior year, said lands have not been sold for said taxes or have been heretofore sold for said delinquent taxes and the sale or sales so made have been set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction, or have been cancelled as provided by law.

Your petitioner further shows and avers that the taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as set forth in said "Schedule A," are a valid lien on the several parcels of lands described in said schedule.

Your petitioner further shows that the said taxes on said described lands have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; and the said taxes not having been paid, and the same being now due and remaining unpaid as above set forth, your petitioner prays a decree in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands, for the payments of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land contained therein, and in default of payment of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands, that each of said parcels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon, as provided by law, to pay the lien aforesaid. And your petitioner will ever pray, etc.

Dated, February 16th, 1916.
ORAMEL B. FULLER,
Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State.
